Jon Feinstein Humble Arts Foundation Opening

By SUSANNAH LONG | Mar 8, 2010 11:26 AM | Events

All photos by Amber de Vos for [PMC] Saturday Night, curators Jon Feinstein and Charlotte Cotton hosted an opening reception for the Humble Arts Foundation's 31 Women in Art Photography Exhibit. Among the guests were Zev Eisenberg, Kipton Cronkite, Whitney Larkin, HAF co-founder Amani Olu, and DJ Brooklyn Dawn.

Selected from an open submission process, the photos on display in 31 Women in Art represent an eclectic sampling of both established and unknown female photographers. From desert-scapes to portraits, the photography on the gallery walls provided a picture-perfect backdrop for photo-ready guests. And now I'm out of photography-related expressions. There are not as many as one might think.

Kipton Cronkite, Zev Eisenberg, Susan Heitman

Amani Olu, Michael Buhler-Rose

Asha, Tom Mendes, Angelica Wrzesinska, Cameron Shay

Kurt Anderson, On His Latest Novel, And The Best Eras In History

New York Times best selling author Kurt

Andersen has a new novel out, True Believers. I took this time as a chance to ask Andersen some questions I've been dying to pick his brain about. What era did young people have it the best in? Which one is most similar to the present one and what can we learn from the 60s (the era covered in his latest novel)?

Everyone hearts art interpretation . . .

. . . almost as much as they love mingling.
